SOUTHERN METHODIST UNIVERSITY

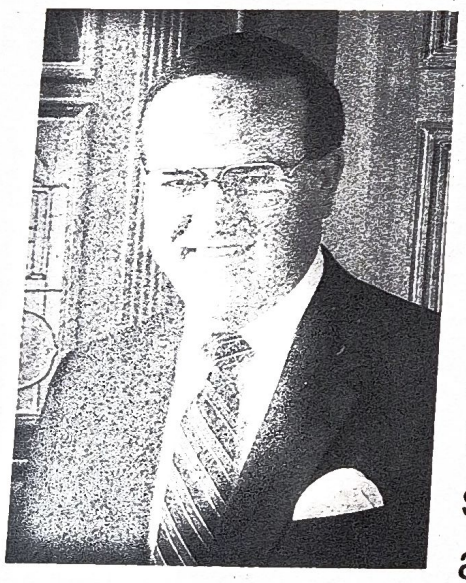
Southern Methodist University sits on a picturesque, lovely campus and one in which we take great pride.

The symmetry of the campus reflects careful planning and the classical beauty of Georgian architecture symbolizes tradition, strength and intellectual achievement.

Many visitors to Dallas come to our campus to enjoy the beauty of the architecture or to visit the magnificent Spanish art collection in the Meadows Museum; to hear a symphony, see a play or view an exhibit in the Bridwell or DeGolyer libraries, or to attend a wedding in Perkins Chapel.



Founded in 1911, SMU's first building, a classic Georgian structure stands as an anchor for the campus and is aptly named Dallas Hall after the city which has nurtured our growth.

BISHOP BOULEVARD

Bishop Boulevard still preserves the grand approach envisioned by the University's founders in 1911. Dallas Hall, background, was a gift of the citizens of Dallas, who subscribed over $300,000 to assure the location of SMU in their city. Dallas Hall is listed on the National Register of Historic Places.

THE BRIDWELL LIBRARY

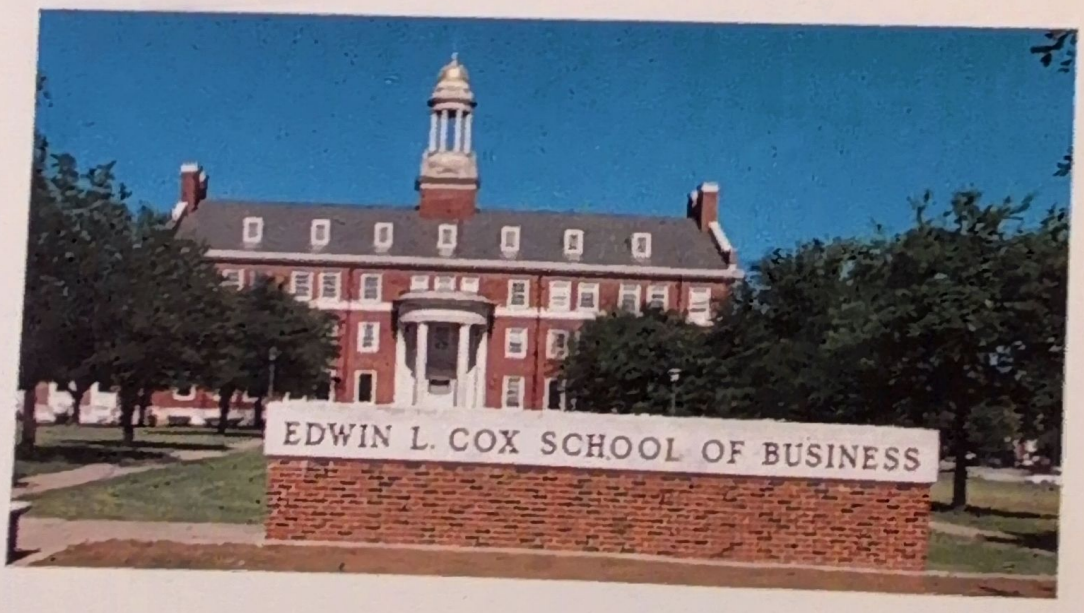
SMU's theological library attracts scholars from all over the world and houses many special collections including manuscripts produced before the printing press, pages of the Gutenberg Bible – and the first Christmas card ever printed.

LAW QUADRANGLE

The Law Quadrangle was completed in 1971 with the dedication of the Underwood Law Library (center). The popular courtyard is highlighted by the cenotaph, a quiet spot of relaxation and meditation for SMU law students.

FONDREN SCIENCE BUILDING

SMU's Georgian architecture is typified by Fondren Science Building, home of the departments of physics, chemistry and biology. The N.L. Heroy Science Hall addition houses the Institute for the Study of Earth and Man (ISEM), a pioneering effort for research in the fields of anthropology and geology.



EDWIN L. COX SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

The Edwin L. Cox School of Business in nationally recognized for its undergraduate, MBA and executive education programs. The school also houses a variety of institutes and centers for specialized business research in many fields.

PERKINS SCHOOL OF THEOLOGY

The Perkins Quadrangle is highlighted by Perkins Chapel, a brick and stone prototype of New England churches of the early 1800s. The style was developed a century earlier in St. Martin-in-the-Fields, London.

PERKINS CHAPEL

Built in 1951 with funds provided by J. J. and Lois Perkins, the chapel is a focal point for Perkins School of Theology, and for University and community worship.

SMU

Nestled in the heart of Dallas and surrounded by the stately Highland Park and University Park townships, SMU has grown into an institution of national influence and international perspective.

From the steps of Dallas Hall the panoramic vista of the Dallas skyline is constantly changing –indicative of the tremendous growth of SMU's host city. (Far left, top.)

SCULPTURE BY HENRY MOORE

Three-piece Reclining Figure, a bronze sculpture by Henry Moore, was executed in 1961-62 and rests in the sculpture garden of Meadows School of the Arts with works by other 20th century masters.

MAIN GALLERY, MEADOWS MUSEUM

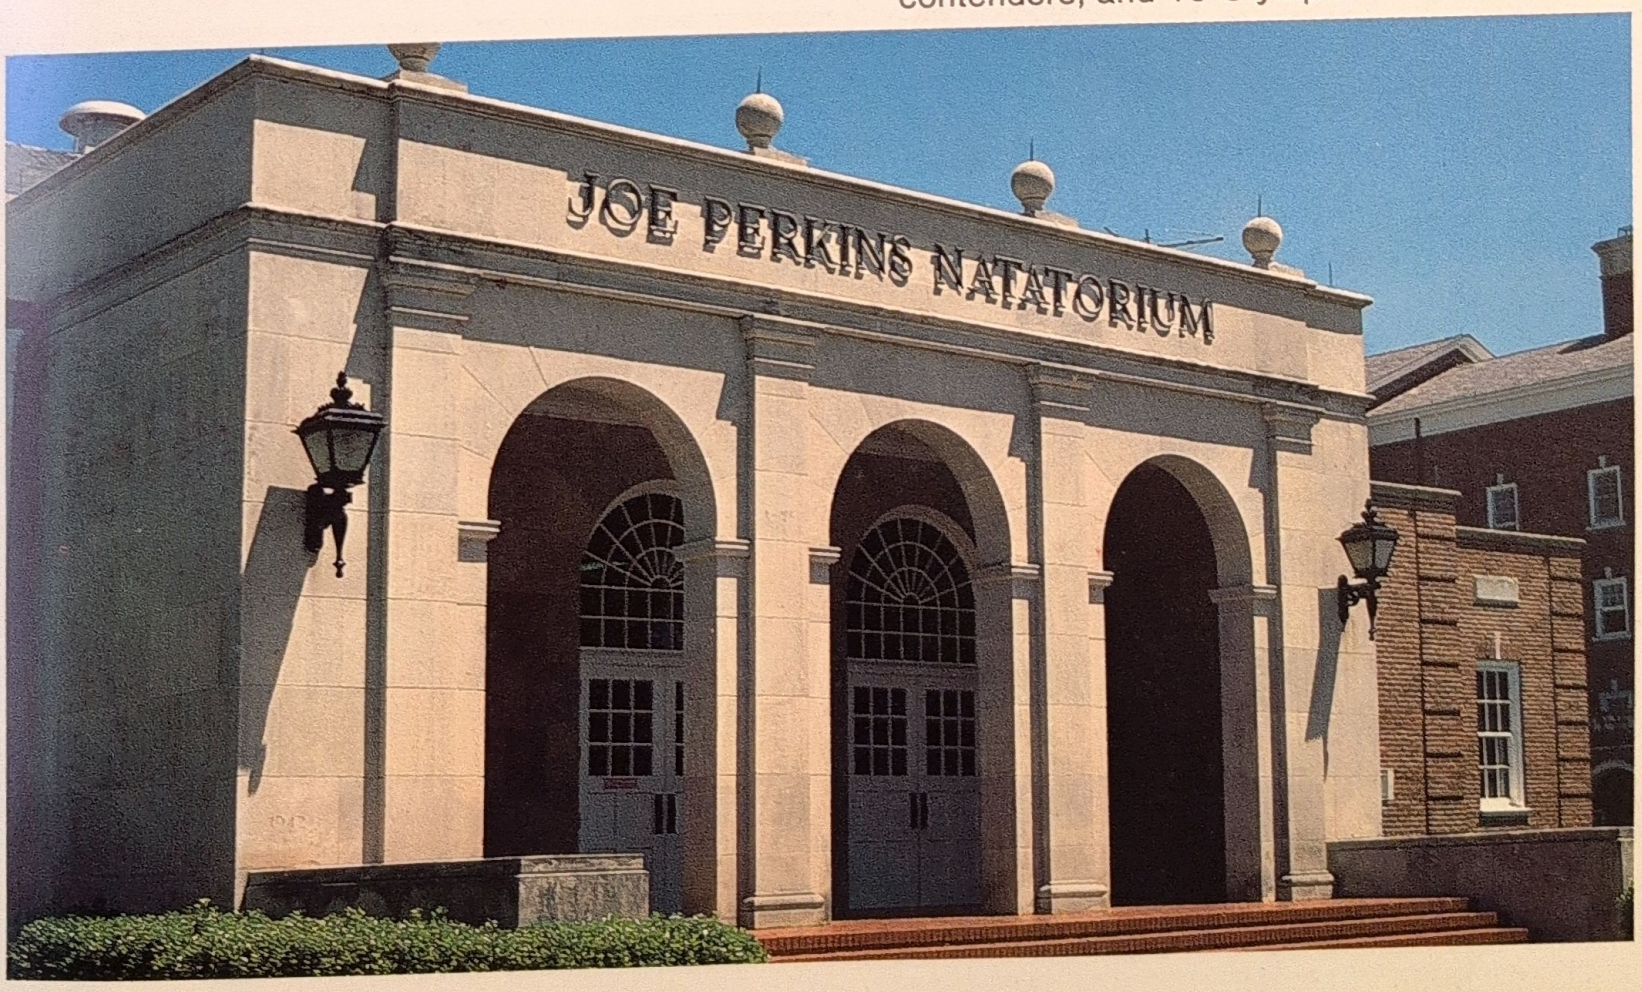
The Meadows Museum houses a collection of Spanish masterpieces considered the finest outside Spain. Ranging from the 15th to the 20th century, the permanent exhibition includes works by Picasso, Goya, Ribera, Velazquez, Murillo, and Miro.

MUSTANG FOOTBALL

Mustang football is renowned for exciting offensive displays and tough defensive stands – a combination that has produced many nationally ranked teams.

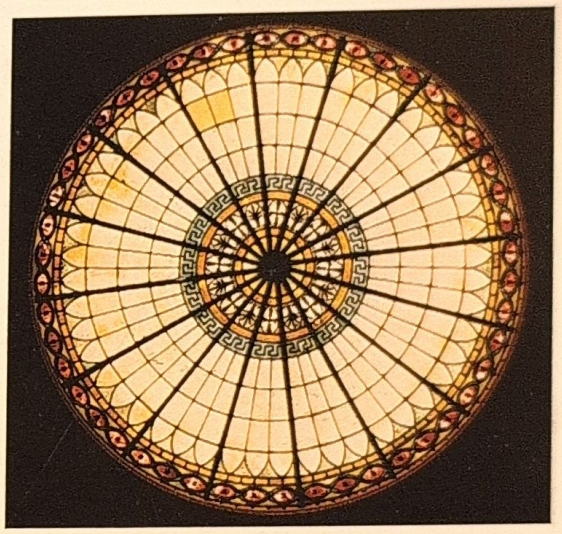
PERKINS NATATORIUM

Perkins Natatorium was SMU's main gymnasium when it was built in 1942. It became the University's indoor swimming facility in 1957, and home for 23 straight Southwest Conference championships, many National contenders, and 10 Olympians.



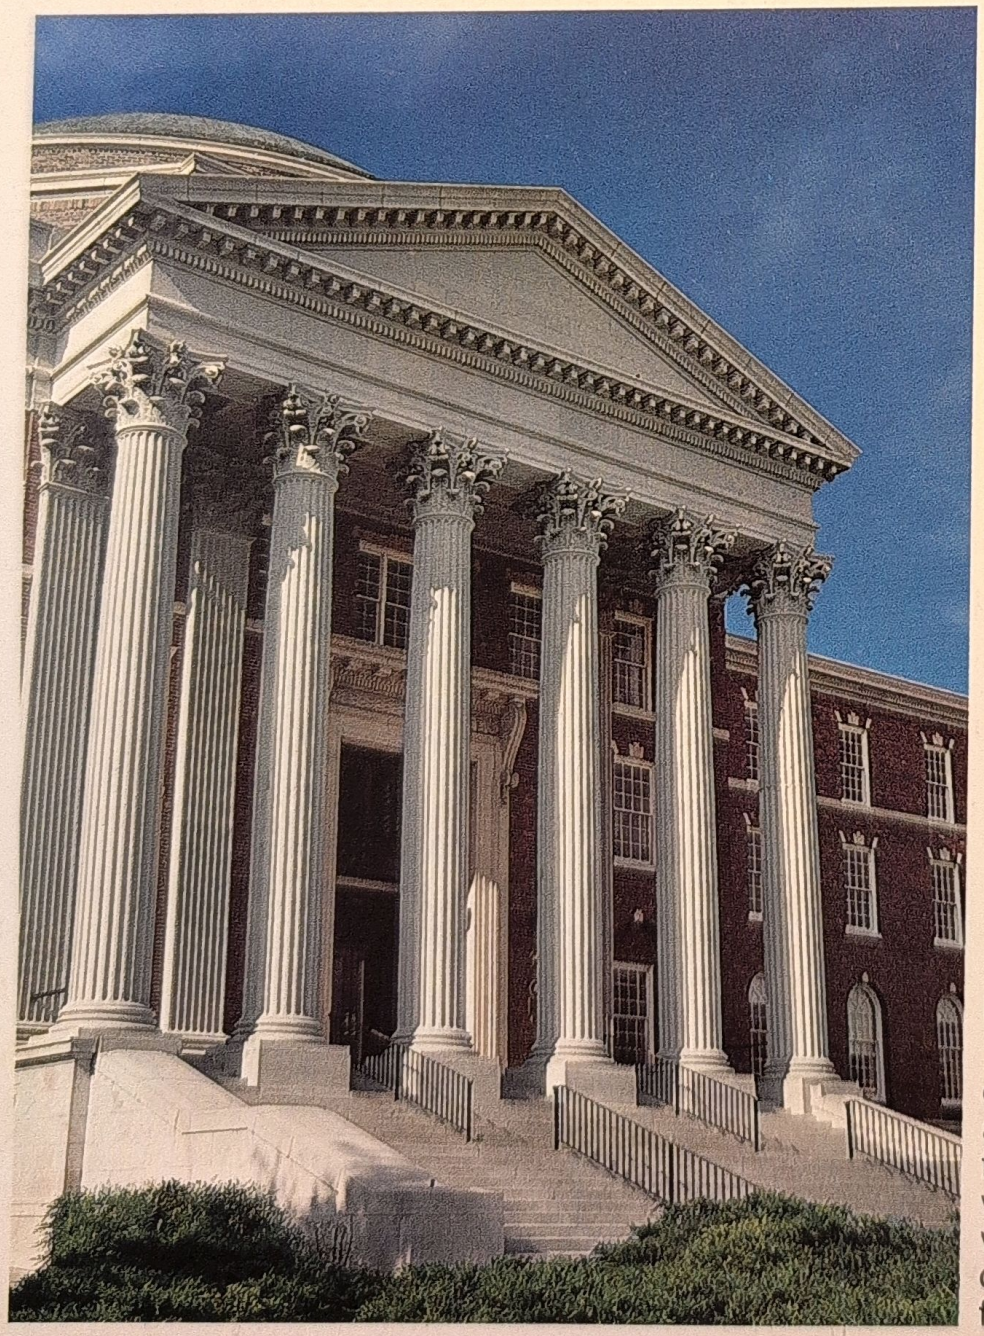
DALLAS HALL

Dallas Hall has served as a powerful symbol unifying the diversity of the campus since 1915. The monumental building combines a revival of classical and Georgian architecture that today houses Dedman College, home of the humanities and sciences at SMU.



DALLAS HALL SKYLIGHT

The spectacular stained glass skylight topping Dallas Hall's domed rotunda has greeted visitors since SMU opened its doors in 1915. Dallas Hall is on the National Register of Historic Places.



DALLAS HALL

Dallas Hall's Corinthian columns greet 9,000 graduate and undergraduate students, 650 faculty, and many thousands of visitors each year. The building was begun in 1911 and completed in 1915 for SMU's first academic session.

PERUNA

Peruna, feisty mascot of the SMU Mustangs, is actually the sixth Shetland pony honored with service since 1932. The name derives from a popular elixir of the time – guaranteed to provide plenty of "get up and go".
